JFK Hartwyck is a network of three non-profit long-term care facilities conveniently located in central New Jersey. The Hartwycks offer specialized long-term care for individuals suffering from Alzheimer's or other dementia as well as specialized services and programs for individuals with head-injuries, coma patients, Huntington's disease patients, and individuals requiring sub-acute rehabilitation care. While each facility has its own distinct atmosphere, common to all is the high-quality care that enables its patients to live a full life with dignity. We understand the emotions that families experience during these difficult times - at the Hartwycks, care givers strive to ease the transition by treating each person in their care with respect, warmth and compassion.

The interdisciplinary team at each facility includes physicians, nurses and certified nurse assistants, social workers and registered dietitians, as well as a group of experts trained in the areas of physical, occupational, recreational, speech and hearing therapies. Residents receive additional care when necessary from consultants who specialize in areas such as dentistry, podiatry and rehabilitation.

Our comprehensive approach to delivery of total care affords residents comfort and the opportunity to live in a dignified, supportive environment where he or she will be encouraged to reach his or her highest potential.
